Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 01 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry but cloudy overnight. Sunny spells developing on Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry this evening, with late sunshine for western and northern areas. Turning cloudy for most overnight, with some patchy drizzle over the Pennines. Some clear spells may remain over the northwest allowing a few fog patches to form. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Thursday:
A cloudy start for most, but brighter across Cumbia. Staying dry, with cloud breaking up through the afternoon to give widespread sunny spells later. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dry on Friday and Saturday, with sunny spells longest lived in the afternoon. Turning windy on Sunday, with a chance of rain arriving later on.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.